Battalion jump on France

Facts

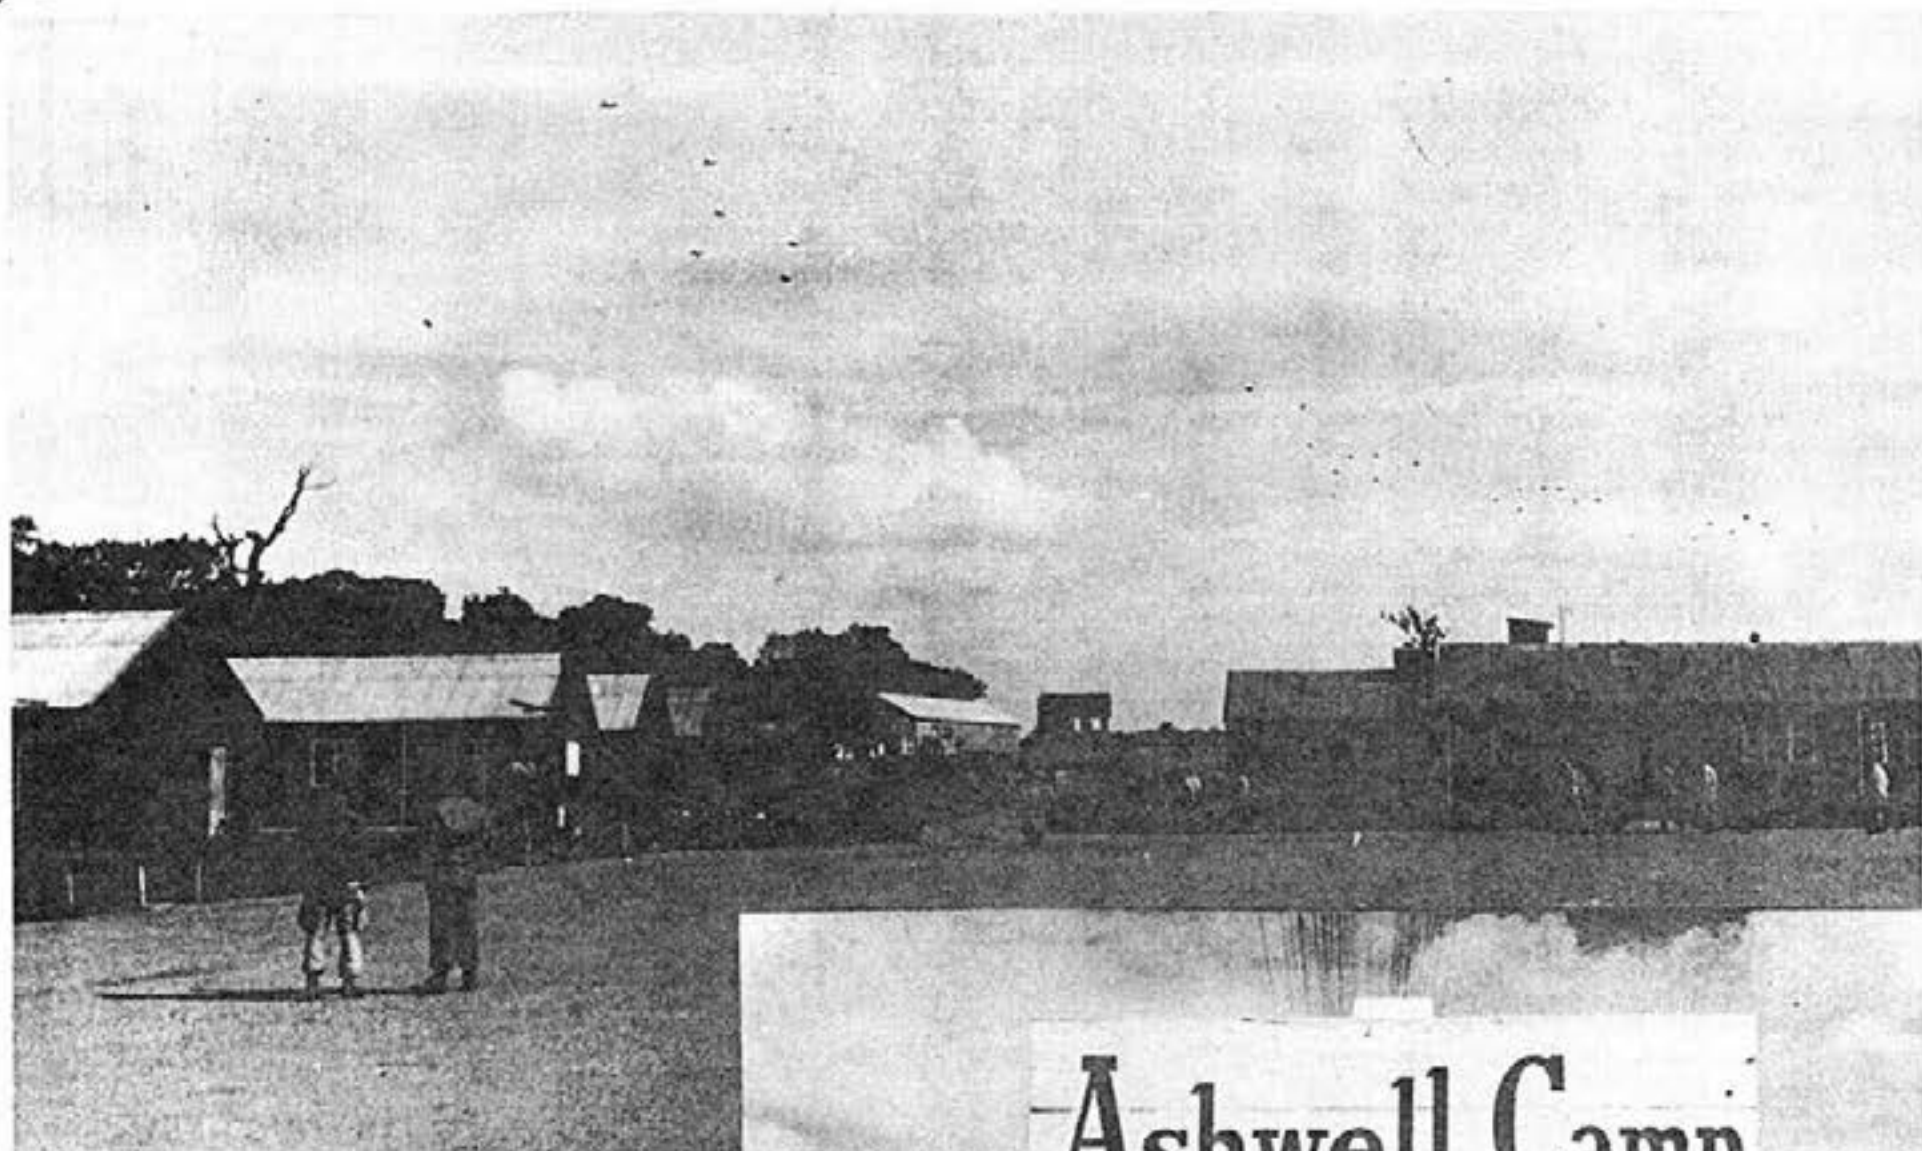

ON APRIL 30, 1945, the 82nd Airborne Division launched an assault across the Northern Elbe at Becklade, Germany. This was the last bridgehead of the European War and No. 11 for the 82nd. Perhaps destiny took things in hand, for two years earlier, in Sicily, on July 9, 1943, it was this same Division, the 82nd Airborne, that parachuted into the flak-riddled night hours before ground forces struck the beaches, to become the first Allied troops to land successfully on Festung Europa. Since that original D-Day in Sicily, the 82nd Sky Commandos landed from the air on Italy, Normandy and Holland, were seaborne at Anzio, and established vital bridgeheads across the Volturno,

Douve, Merderet, Maas, Waal, Rhine, and Elbe Rivers. The 82nd Airborne was the first U. S. Airborne Division overseas, the first to see combat, captured the most prisoners (200,000), made the most Airborne Invasions (4), had the most combat hours (371), made the first bridgehead in Europe (Sicily), and liberated the first town in Normandy (Ste. Mère Eglise). It was selected as the honor-Division to police Berlin after VE-Day, then received the supreme compliment by being designated as the Division to lead the American Ground Forces Parade down 5th Ave., New York, Jan. 12, 1946. British General Sir Miles Dempsey, in Holland, said of the 82nd Airborne, "—the greatest division in the world today."

PARATROOPS HEADING FOR HOLLAND

Ashwell Chow

Time was when the chow hall rang
With the gang that used to be;
Time was when the chow hall sang
Was as thick as a fog-bound sea.

Laughin' guys in para-boots
Just a-sweatin' out the line,
Full of bull on parachutes
When a-sittin' down to dine.

Mess kits full of Miller's slop
(It was spam and lamb and stew)—
Meals were always quite a flop
On the tables slick with goo.

Rubbin' elbows, eatin' fast,
In the bulgin', clankin' hall;
Nuthin' left for him that's last,
It is best to grab it all.

Talk was loud and guffaws long
As they kidded some poor egg
On the gal he yearned to wrong
Till he felt her wooden leg.

Whispers low—a move to come—
From a bloated know-it-all—
(Where'd they get this talky bum?
For his line I'd never fall).

"Jumpers better draw a chute—
There's a jump at ten past one."
Sweatin' got us stricken mute;
We've got to eat and run.

Oh, for the gang that used to be!
I'd see them all once more—
If such a thing as sentiment
Could bring them to my door!
